Heavy batting was the feature of the game. The Coits got six off Poole, while Bussey allowed the Tars thirteen. Griffin was credited with a home run, but many of the fans thought he was not entitled to but one base. He drove the ball well within the third base, but it curved over the foul line and bounded over the fence, Dodge, the all-around star player of the Norfolk team, made a record for himself by getting four safe hits, two of them for two bases, out of five times at the bat. Though there is no longer any doubt as to the fate of the United States League, President Marshall Henderson having given the last word, some balm remains in Gilead by reason of the fact that the Rebs inished in first place. The season was short, it is true, much shorter than the fans wanted it to be, but Al Newnham made good and brought a team to Richmond which put this man's town out in front. If economical methods could have availed, then Richmond would still be playing baseball in the defunct organization; that is, provided these same economical methods had been pursued in other cities of the circuit. To Newnham which he jugan with just one exception—Sox, Sexbola? He never had but fifteen men report, and of these fifteen twelve are still with the club. To the layman this may mean little, but to the student of baseball affairs it means a great deal, while to the owners it means still more.

Bringing together a large number of ball players entalls a great deal of expense. First, there is the transportation to pay, and then there are salaries to be paid. Another view which appeals to the man who is looking for a manager, is from the playing stand.

these mon is a moral obligation on the whole community.

It has not been definitely decided that popular subscriptions he asked. But it has been suggested. The 100 business men who agreed to become stockholders in the local team if the other cities in the circuit put up as much money as Richmond was prepared to put up, are released from their collization by the crillapse of the league. Still it is believed that they will come across, if approached, to help pay the men. A meeting of the committee which had in charge soliciting stock subscriptions, will be held this morning at 10 o'clock in the offices of Gibboney and Nuckols. At that meeting something will be determined upon.

While many of the fellows have offers of jobs—practically all of them in fact—some of them lack the money needed to move them to the town in which they can find employment. Is Richmond going to see them suffer because of a debt which is largely Richmond's? The question will be decided to-day.
